Dear Oxford Resident:

The Oxford Post Office needs your help.

You have undoubtedly seen the reports that the USPO is seeking ways to reduce expenses in the face of increasing costs and reduced demand. One of the methods chosen to accomplish this objective is to close the less profitable locations.

Some functions of the Oxford Post Office have been moved elsewhere, but it has escaped the closure list – for now. You can help keep it off that list by using its services.

When you need to send a package to someone, take it to the Oxford Post Office. Go there to purchase stamps, packaging material, money orders and other services. Mailing your letters from there doesn't help unless you buy your stamps there. What counts is the amount of dollars spent in the Oxford facility.

We all appreciate the excellent service we receive at the Oxford Post Office and we want to see the employees there continue to serve our community. Let's do our part by purchasing our postal services and supplies at our post office.

Sincerely,

Jerry
